Briefly describe the program proposal (new or change) and provide a justification:

Abstract

In 2015, Anthropology split our major into three concentrations, to better reflect the multiple sub-fields within the discipline: Archaeological and Biological approaches, Cultural and Linguistic approaches, and a 'General' concentration for students who wanted the benefits of a classic 'four-field' approach. After several years of running these concentrations, we have identified some issues with the current structure. These proposed changes allows more flexibility more courses into existing categories to give students more opportunities to meet requirements, proposing new courses to reflect current faculty expertise, offer a wider array of courses, and help students graduate in a timely manner.

The name of the concentration has been changed from General Anthropology to Integrative Anthropology to convey intentionality and urge students to think about anthropology as constituted by complementary and mutually influential subfields. This affords students the space to creatively combine forms of anthropological knowledge and develop methods to address issues. We are also contemporizing the program description to reflect this and make it comprehensive to students.

In order to improve timely degree progress for our students, we propose the reduction in the size of the major across all concentrations by 9 units. The overall size of the major, which at 52 units is greater than many programs on campus, is an impediment to student recruitment and timely degree progress. Proposed curriculum requires students to complete 43 units of coursework. This change will involve removing the STATS requirement from the shared core (The necessary introduction to statistical methods are already taught in the methods courses required for this concentration). Additional 6 units (2 courses) were reduced from within the concentration's curriculum. To reduce student confusion around GE reqs and the general electives for the major, we are introducing a new category called 'Integrative Anthropology Electives.' This category includes all upper division Anthropology courses. A student could use this curricular space to take additional course (those they haven't enrolled for to satisfy other requirements) in their area of anthropological interest. This contributes to achieving the program learning outcomes established.

Program Learning Outcomes

Program Learning Outcomes

Learning Outcome

- 1: Inquiry & Analysis
- a) Identify and investigate issues and objects of inquiry drawing from evidence relevant to Anthropology.
- b) Systematically analyze anthropological topics or issues within the domain of Anthropology
- 2: Critical Thinking
- a) Critically evaluate issues using anthropological perspectives and articulate the ways in which nature, culture and/or society intersect and inform human experience.
- b) Assess and synthesize on-going debates and discussions in Anthropology through the development of strong analytical skills and arguments.
- 3: Synthesis and advanced accomplishment across general and specialized studies (Anthropological Perspectives)
- a) Effectively use anthropological concepts, frameworks and/or theories to analyze, explain and address the diversity of human experience.
- b) Demonstrate how anthropological scholarship contributes to, and in turn is influenced by, theories from other disciplines.
- c) Compare theories and/ or perspectives within the field of Anthropology.
- 4: Written, Oral and Visual Communication
- a) Identify and investigate issues and objects of inquiry drawing from evidence relevant to Anthropology
- b) Clearly and effectively explain key concepts and debates within the field of Anthropology.
- c) Identify and cite appropriate scholarly sources.
- d) Communicate in a clear, organized and effective manner.
- 5: Ethical Reasoning and Action
- a) Deploy knowledge gained to be critically aware of oneself.
- b) Use knowledge gained to become a ethically minded global citizen.

Briefly describe the change:

Reduction in the number of units required for the major - nine units reduced.

Catalog Description:

Units required for Major: 43-44, includes units of study in chosen concentration Total units required for BA: 120

Program Description

The Integrative Anthropology concentration introduces students to the fundamentals of archaeological, biological, sociocultural, and linguistic anthropology. It provides a well-rounded and holistic view of the discipline though coverage of the diverse lines of inquiry and evidence that anthropologists use to explore the human condition. This concentration is grounded in creative, critical, and analytical thinking, and prepares students for a very diverse range of career paths, from private sector and corporate jobs to those in the government and non-profit sectors. It also prepares students for postgraduate education.

Admission Requirements: Course prerequisites and other criteria for admission of students to the degree major program, and for their continuation in it.

Minimum Grade Requirement

Except for General Electives, all requirements must be completed with a grade of "C-" or better.

As defined by policy http://www.csus.edu/umanual/acadaff/fsm00010.htm, a change in units constitutes a substantive change to the program. If your changes constitute a substantive change, please refer back to the "Program Change Type" field above to ensure that "Substantive" is selected.

Program Requirements: (If new courses are being created as part of a new program, it will be useful to propose courses first.)
